

Thursday 13th November 13.00

Filmmaker Ken O'Sullivan has spent a lifetime filming in Ireland's natural environment. He's produced and filmed documentaries such as Dolphins: Wonder of the Ocean

An engaging speaker, he discusses the trials and tribulations of wildlife filmmaking, why Irish programmes have to compete on the world stage and why he can't do anything else.

Click here for Ken O'Sullivan talk

Wednesday 19th November 13.00

Ever wondered what the circular economy is? Are you part of it? This session will help explain why it's an important theory with a very broad but practical application.

Claire Downey, CEO of The Rediscovery Centre- the National Centre for circularity - discusses its importance and impact in Ireland. We also talk to some media industry practitioners on how their businesses contribute to the Circular Economy. Hosted by Kim Knowles from The Change We Need.

Click here for Circular Economy

Wednesday 26th November 13.00

Ours to Protect is a unique radio project that brings together 23 Irish stations to create audio content on climate change and the environment.

Series director Nessa McGann heads up this project and shares her experience. For the second series they partnered with audio documentarian Kara Oehler to use new technology to capture audio in nature. Kara discusses how she combines sound data and journalism and the audience gets to hear novel sounds from nature.

Click here for Ours to Protect

Sessions are free for SMI members & staff. Please email info@sustainablemedia.ie to register your attendance or click on links above.